BY MARY LEONARDI

CHRIS BARKELL
The information for this test was thrown upon us. I heard that when approached the Writing Center had not even prepared for such a test.

BETH PATTERSON
I think it's a good idea. Not everyone knows how to write.

RICK GILMAN
I don't know anything about it because I couldn't read the notice I received.

TED PALIK
I know that can write well, so I'm not worried about it.

MARY LEONARDI
In my opinion, if you are in college and cannot write, you are in serious trouble. No test is a true judge of intelligence.

TERESA DARLINGTON
Not many people have really been informed of the meaning of this test or its consequences.

Excellence in Education Hurt by Budget Cuts

Anyone who watched President Reagan's State of the Union Address once again heard his plea for excellence in education; excellence that is to be achieved through increased technical training, strengthening of basic skills in reading and writing and more teacher incentives through merit pay.

However, the message Reagan presented to the people doesn't correlate with the message given to Congress--to hack away at educational funding.

No one can argue that beefing up the educational system is essential, particularly in the public school systems. But, along with the notion of excellence in education must come the idea of excellence in opportunity to receive a good education. If Reagan's budget cuts pass Congress, that opportunity will be lessened for many middle class students and minority groups across the county.

Reagan's proposal includes the following:

- Students would be limited to no more than $4,000 a year in financial aid.
- Students whose family earns over $32,500 will be ineligible for Guaranteed Student Loans beginning with the 1986-87 school year.
- Students whose family earns above $25,000 will be denied Pell Grants, National Direct Student Loans and College Work-Study Funds.
- The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants would be eliminated entirely.

It has been estimated that literally millions of students will be made ineligible for Pell Grant aid, NSDL and Work Study programs, and be affected by the cap on GSLs. Cuts in state programs will also hurt prospective students.

Some feel students attending smaller, less expensive schools won't be greatly affected by the cuts since they don't receive the ceiling amount of $4,000 anyway. But that's not the problem. Students whose financial aid packages are nowhere near the ceiling have still seen a steady decline in aid for the past four years, making it just that much more difficult to pay for tuition, books, etc. Severe budget cuts can only worsen the situation.

Letters To The Editor

Library Hours Insufficient

Dear Editor:

According to Webster's Dictionary, one of the definitions of a library is "a collection of books, manuscripts or other literary materials kept for convenient use, study or enjoyment." The important word in the definition is "convenient." A library should aid in the attainment of personal knowledge, entertainment and in some cases relaxation.

Blackwell Library, as almost every SSC student and faculty member knows, is our campus library. I believe this library is not offering me, and probably many others, the convenience or availability of its services because of the hours it is open.

I don't have any qualms with the hours posted from Monday through Thursday, which are 8 a.m. to midnight. However, on Friday the library is only open until 10 p.m. The dorms are quite noisy on week end evenings; so, those who want and need to study often can't. The library should be available to them even if the number of students using the facility at this time is minimal.

The library closes at 5 p.m. on Saturday which is a total injustice. I believe the library should stay open until at least 8 p.m. Saturday.

The injustice the library hours really imposes on me becomes evident during exam week. The hours don't increase even though there are more students and possibly faculty using its services for more hours than usual.

I am in no way discrediting anyone who works in the library because I personally feel most of the personnel is helpful and friendly. I just hope that whoever is responsible for posting hours will take my suggestions into consideration and, if possible, revise the library hours

Paula Thompson

Others have expressed views that these same small colleges like SSC, will actually benefit from the cuts since students will be discouraged from applying to more expensive schools. But, this isn't the way our "emocratic" system of higher education is supposed to work.

Colleges aren't supposed to benefit from students' misfortunes. Those with exceptional mental ability but few financial resources have the right to an education that will push them to excel. Those with lesser academic talents still have the right to take advantage of any educational resources available. If the administration's goal is excellence in education, it should be willing to help such students achieve their potential.

What good is a sound educational system if it discriminates against those who can't afford it.

Important Notice!

Request forms for on campus housing for fall 1985 are available in the Housing Office, room 130, Holloway Hall, during the week of Feb. 25-March 1 for any current student living on or off campus. The lottery will be run and bills will be sent home to eligible students during spring break.

New Dormitory, College Center Almost Ready For Construction

BY TED PALIK

The long awaited project for a new $4 million dormitory and $6 million College Center will finally be put into motion with the approval of the lease/ buy-back arrangement for the two buildings by Maryland's Board of Public Works, according to a story in the Salisbury News And Advertiser and SSC Vice President of Administration Joe Gilbert.

"The last approval obstacle has been overcome," Gilbert said of Public Works' approval. "Now we can go ahead with a request for a financing and construction proposal for both buildings," he said.

Earlier this month, a request was put together by the SSC Board of Trustees, the Maryland Department of General Services and representatives of the college for proposals from prospective developers. The request was offered in such a way that both projects would be contained in one package.

Gilbert emphasized the package format, meaning that an approved developer would find financing and a contractor to complete the task as one project.

"A bank could propose to handle the package, or a contractor, or a private individual," Gilbert said.

The group selected would then decide on one proposal. Once accepted, a contract would have to be worked out. "At that point, it would be up to the vendor to find proper financing and a contractor," Gilbert said. "Under the college's watchful eye and the terms of the contract, of course," he added.

To pay for the new dormitory, all resident students will be charged a new dormitory fee. Once a developer has been selected to finance and construct the project, that organization will lease it to SSC. Funds collected from the student fee will support the lease agreement, with SSC being able to buy the building after 30 years. The procedure is the essence of a lease buy-back arrangement.

The new College Center will be financed in a similar way with a College center construction fee of $45. This fee is already being taken out of student funds. Gilbert said the design and shape specifications for the Center are far along at the present time and the college needs to pay the architect, hence the construction fee.

"A for the new dormitory," he added, "its construction will be similar to Chesapeake dorm, with a motel-style design, brick foundations and outside walkways."

Gilbert made it clear that the athletic fields near Route 13 would be left intact.

Gilbert said commuters would not help pay for the new dormitory but that there is a possibility they will help pay for the new College Center. Part-time students may also pay for the Center. "There is a classification here between who pays for the dormitory and who pays for the College Center."

The dormitory will take about 8 months to complete and the College Center about 2 years, according to figures released by the SSC Public Relations Department. The entire cost is estimated at $10 million. It is hoped that groundbreaking will begin in June 1985.

In a prepared statement from Public Relations, SSC officials said that the addition of the new dormitory "would greatly alleviate" the school's severe student housing shortage and added that they were "greatly pleased that this problem can be partially solved without spending tax dollars."

Gilbert expressed satisfaction that the project is finally getting underway. "This has been a concern for SSC over the past 10 years. We're glad that the time has now come."

Until the new dormitory is completed, SSC will be placing 10 modular homes to house 140 students on the site of the former headquarters for Allen Farms (Allenwood). Once construction of the new dormitory is completed, these homes will be sold and removed.

Gilbert noted an additional project which is intended to turn Tawes Gym into classrooms, exclusively. No student fee would be required for the renovation because the State of Maryland would provide funds, since the project does not involve auxiliary structures. The State does not provide funds for auxiliaries such as a dormitory or student union.

Bellavance Decides To Put SSC Name Change On Hold

BY TED PALIK

SSC President Thomas Bellavance said there will be no action on the university status of the college in the 1985 Maryland Legislative Session.

"We have no intention of acting on the possibility of name change for the school at this point," Bellavance said. "It seems to me that logic has no place in the situation at present and we're going to hold off for now."

Bellavance referred to opposition to the name change as the major factor in putting the idea on hold, especially from University of Maryland President John S. Teall.

In an article in The Baltimore Sun, Toll expressed opposition to SSC's proposed name change because he felt it would "confuse the missions" of Salisbury State with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore (UMES). Toll is president of the whole University of Maryland "system."

Bellavance said the political situation was a factor in the opposition. "A name like the University of Salisbury would reflect success and high status while it would scare other colleges that are not so successful."

Bellavance added that he thinks Toll's contention lies in the fact that a name change for SSC would detract prospective enrollment and drawing power from UMES. "This is totally illogical," he said.

Our two schools are currently involved in a collaborative plan which ensures that our respective curriculums will duplicate as little as possible," Bellavance said. "UMES as 1,000 students and is part of a larger system. It concentrates on agriculture, computers, farming, and maintaining the black embrace and heritage. If a student wants to study agri-business he can go to UMES."

"SSC, on the other hand, has 4,600 students and is an independent entity. We have programs in different areas, such as medical technology, business and nursing. If a student wants to study med-tech he can come to SSC."

Bellavance cited another example of the difference between the two schools. "If a high school graduate native to the Eastern Shore wants to attend a larger institution, then in this context he would choose SSC. Both our schools if student tastes in size of a college."

A name change resolution was passed by the SSC Board of Trustees and approved by the Maryland State Board of Higher Education and the Board of Trustees for State Universities and Colleges, but funding power for the resolution is controlled by the State Legislature. Both Houses would have to draw up their own bill for the proposed change.

SSC To Be Inspected

Salisbury State College is currently undergoing a self-evaluation process in preparation for an inspection by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools and is seeking help from any interested students.

These inspections, which occur about every 10 years, are the most important in determining whether the college is maintaining standards that entitle them to certain academic accreditations.

The process of scrutinizing each aspect of the college began almost a year ago and will continue through the summer.

Nayland Page, history professor and chairman of the steering committee that developed the evaluation plan, stressed that student input is extremely valuable for the evaluation. He added that although some students may not see how the evaluation directly affects them, it is important simply because it is an attempt to improve all areas of the college. The inspection could adversely affect current and incoming students if the college loses its accreditations.

Four basic areas to be covered in the study are the college mission, which is the college's goals for students and faculty; academic programs; student recruitment and retention, which is how to keep students as SSC; and governance, which is college structure and management.

Numerous committees consisting of faculty, administrators and students have already been formed to examine specific areas in the four broader categories. But, Page said anyone is welcome to participate in open committee meetings.

For information on committee leaders, topics under discussion and meeting dates, contact the Dean of Students Office or the Flyer at 543-6191.

Evergreen To Come Out After All

BY DUANE EUTSEY

The 1984 Salisbury State yearbook, Evergreen, has been tentatively scheduled for release this semester before Spring, but only a limited amount will be available to students, and then only to upperclassmen, said Bruce Laire, who is involved with yearbook distribution.

Laire said that after 600 of the 1,050 yearbooks are mailed to last year's graduating seniors and approximately 100 others are given to campus offices and student organizations, only 350 yearbooks will be left. Those will be reserved for juniors and seniors.

The reason for this, Laire said, so that freshmen and most sophomores will not be in the yearbook. Laire, along with Craig Fringer, have been appointed by the Student Senate to distribute the books this semester. No plans for distributions have been made.

The yearbook has been in trouble for the past five years, due mainly, most sources agree, to lack of student interest.

Dean of Students Carol Williamson told the Student Senate last semester that the campus administration had placed a moratorium on production of the yearbook until student interest is more solid.

However, Assistant Dean of Students John Fields said that "the yearbook isn't a forgotten cause" and that he hopes to "generate interest" in the yearbook by proposing that yearbook production become a class for credit in the art department. He will make a recommendation to the Student Senate this semester.

Fields also said there will be no yearbook this semester in the "traditional sense" due to the moratorium imposed on its production, but he added there will be a senior directory or composite book that will be mailed to this spring's graduating seniors. The project will be produced off campus.

Reagan Budget Proposes More Student Aid Cuts

If rumors about the 1986 Education Department budget prove true, one of every four students who apply for federal financial aid won't get it.

Students from middle-income families and those attending private or out-of-state schools would suffer most under the proposals, financial aid experts forecast.

Trial balloons sent up by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) in early January signal the Reagan administration may try to limit students to no more than $4,000 a year in financial aid, and disqualify families that make more than $30,000 a year from the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) and Pell grant programs. The budget proposals should reach Congress in February. Congress will then accept, reject or approve figures of its own.

"If the proposals are accepted, of course, we hope they won't be—it means a serious restriction to graduate study loan aid and to all kinds of undergraduate aid," predicted Charles Saunders of the American Council on Education (ACE).

Financial aid directors around the country agree the proposals could hurt needy and middle-income students.

"A $30,000 income cap would have a significant impact on our student population, on a tremendous amount of middle-income families," said Edmond Vignoul, University of Oregon financial aid director.

Under current rules, students from families earning more than $30,000 a year must pass a "needs test" to get federal aid. Now the administration wants to cut off such students regardless of need.

"Without the loans and grants, their options will be limited and this obviously will have a detrimental effect on our enrollment," Vignoul added.

"As many as 25 percent of the students we process loans for wouldn't qualify with a $30,000 income ceiling," claimed Taft Benson, Texas A and M's spokesman. "It would eliminate a great number of students who might otherwise benefit from higher education," he continued. "Students might not get an education because of lack of resources."

Benson admits the $4,000 aid cap might not affect students at moderately-priced institutions, but students at private or out-of-state schools who usually receive more than $4,000 per year would have to find other financing or other schools.

"About 10 percent of our aid population would be adversely affected by the $4,000 cap," estimated John Klacik of Western Washington University.

"And I was kind of surprised to hear the $30,000 income limit would affect about 50 percent of our GSL student population," he added.

Klacik condemns the proposals as "a direct attack on what I consider the principles of financial aid: provide students access to higher education, encourage choice between institutions, and acknowledge the persistence to get through four years of college."

"Part of my concerns are the dichotomy," he added. "We talk about cutting access and choice at the same time we talk about excellence in education. If cuts need to be made, I've heard more intelligent proposals that would target funds more precisely."

Educators expect the OMB to try again to eliminate $412 million in Supplemental Grants, $76 million in State Student Incentive Grants and $17 million in graduate fellowships for women and minorities, Klacik said, adding that another recycled OMB plan would freeze next year's education budget.

Meanwhile, the Department of Education, burdened with changing leadership and an uncertain future, is reviewing all the proposals, but officials refuse comment.

"We know what the administration has proposed," a department spokesman says. "But we can't comment until Congress is in session and we get our programs over there to weigh them against the administration's."

Education experts hope Reagan's recent nomination of William Bennett to replace outgoing Education Secretary Terrel Bell is a reprieve from the administration's plan to dismantle the department.

"Some (OMB) proposals are similar to those made when Reagan was first elected," Benson commented. "Congress rejected them then, and I hope Congress continues its foresight and sensitivity to students needing money for education." Congress did in fact pass many Reagan student aid cuts in 1981, but tended to resist more cuts in subsequent years.

"Everyone says there's a need for excellence in higher education," Vignoul said. "This flies in the face of what Reagan says. You can't take away the opportunity for a significant number of students to get an education and expect to improve the face of higher education."

Book Thefts Already On Rise This Semester

BY TERRI TRESP

Only two weeks into the semester and already six text books have been reported stolen on campus. This figure combined with the 33 books stolen last semester show a significant increase in book thefts in recent years, making it the biggest theft problem on campus, according to Public Safety Director Jim Phillips.

Of the 33 books stolen, only eight were recovered, all at Campus Books, Inc., the new bookstore in the Allenwood Shopping Center. SSC text books are turning up at Campus Books, Phillips said, because the store buys back books at anytime. Phillips said the college and Campus Books are working together to "close off the market" for stolen books by requiring identification from persons trying to sell books and keeping a list of books reported stolen from SSC.

Phillips made it clear the college would prosecute those caught stealing. Two students were arrested during finals week last semester. Both were found guilty, given probation, fined $120 and ordered to make restitution to Campus Books.

Public Safety officers and the college judicial boards are meeting this week to discuss making on campus sanctions for theft stricter since severe penalties are rarely given in public courts. Suspension from school is being considered.

Phillips said suspension may sound harsh, but added stolen books are not always simply a question of money. Students who have entire bookbags stolen with notes or term papers inside face a real set back in the classroom.

Twenty three of the 33 thefts last semester occurred in the dining hall when students left their books unattended in the slots in the lobby. Phillips admitted bookbags are not allowed in the cafeteria, but said individual books can be taken to tables if students can overcome the inconvenience of juggling books and trays.

"Students are just going to have to change their habits," Phillips said. Prevention suggestions include leaving books in dorm rooms when eating, renting a locker at Maggs or having a friend watch your books if you enter the bookstore. Phillips added that students should mark their texts with names or social security numbers in a way that is hard to detect so that anyone stealing the book won't know it's marked. Immediately reporting stolen books is also important if there is a chance for recovery.

Most Successful Season Ever Has Gulls Looking Towards Playoffs

BY RICK GILMAN

Almost 600 fans were scattered throughout the bleachers of Maggs Gym to watch Salisbury State's men's basketball team play Stockton State last Saturday. It was a game with a lot at stake for the Gulls.

A win would give Salisbury, ranked 8th in the nation in Division III and second in their region, 20 wins, breaking the previous record of most wins for the second consecutive season. A loss would mean a certain fall in the rankings and a diminished chance at a playoff invitation.

and into the basket at the buzzer, sending the crowd into a frenzy and the game into overtime. The Gulls went on to win 88-82. Perhaps no single game of this season represents better why the Gulls are 20-4 and ranked one of the top teams in the country. Salisbury's victory that afternoon had all the elements the Gulls have used as their winning formula all season long.

The most important ingredient in Salisbury's success has been bench depth. In the Stockton game, Head Coach Ward also, like any good defense in any sport, opened up opportunities for offense. Hustle, simply working hard, has been another essential ingredient to the Gulls' success.

The Gulls are a relatively small team. Yet, they out rebounded the Ospreys 40-29. They did this by going to the boards aggressively and hustling after loose balls. Good chemistry has also been apparent. "The chemistry of the team is good, we're really playing sharp," said Lambert. "The talent is no better now than it ever was. We're just playing better team ball."

The Gulls have also been perched at the top of the polls because of their ability to pull out close games. Nine of the team's 24 games have been decided by four points or less. Seven being Gull victories. Turn those close victories into losses and Salisbury would be 13-11, with everyone screaming once again that it was time to oust Lambert.

There may be some luck involved in the Gulls' close games, but the team's poise under pressure can't be denied. "We've shown a lot of poise and maturity," said Lambert. "And we're playing well because of it."

Lambert should be credited for his team's fundamentally sound play, another key to success. The Gulls seldom make self-inflicted mistakes which plague most teams, especially at this level of play. In a close game, one bad pass, a careless foul or a momentary mental slip by one player can make the difference between winning and losing.

The Gulls have performed the basics well, a characteristic of all winning programs at all levels. A coach may or may not be blessed with talent. Whether he is or not, he can't be held accountable as a coach, only as a recruiter. But how well a team works the fundamentals is a good indication of how well a coach is doing his job. Lambert should be commended for his team's sound play and good basketball sense.

Finally, Salisbury's win over Stockton made the Gulls' success as home all the more evident. SSC is currently 10-0 this year at home and has a 14 game winning streak over two seasons.

The SEa Gulls ended the 1984 portion of their season with a record of 8-3. They lost the championship game of both the North Carolina Wesleyan Tournament and the Wild Goose Classic. They won the Gull Classic, however, with a 67-66 overtime victory over Trenton State.

Trenton then went on to win 14 straight games to become the number one ranked team in the South Atlantic Region of Division III. The Gulls ended 1984 with a consolation win over Catholic in the Scranton Holiday Tournament.

1985 began with solid victories over Stockton State and Lincoln, helping the Gulls to gain ranking of 14th in the first Division III poll released in January.

The Gulls strengthened their position by avenging an earlier loss to Washington College as junior Dave Pritchett hit both ends of a one and one with five seconds remaining to secure a 73-70 win in Maggs.

With lopsided victories over Virginia Wesleyan and St. Mary's, the Gulls moved into the top 10 for the first time when they were ranked number nine.

However, the next day the Gulls dropped a game in double overtime to conference foe Frostburg State 79-77, making their stay in the top 10 brief.

But that was just the beginning of what turned into a trying week for Lambert. Freshman Ron Pritchett, who at the time was second in team scoring and rebounding, walked off the team.

"It was a lot of things, not just one," said Lambert, explaining the freshman's absence. "He wasn't satisfied with his play. I was but he wasn't. He is very demanding of him-

But sophomore Ralph Baltimore led the team to a 60-59 victory with 18 points.

Ron returned to the team as they pushed their winning streak to six with wins over York, Christopher Newport, Catholic and Frostburg.

Salisbury plays Mary Washington tonight at home. A win would assure the Gulls the best record in regular season conference play and the right to host the tournament for the second straight year.

Lambert hopes for a good turnout for the game. "Support this year has been good, but it could be better," the coach said.

self and is goal oriented. He had some problems at home and was taking two courses over winter break. He just needed time to get his priorities straight."

The loss of Pritchett seemed to affect the whole team as they fell behind Mary Washington and faced the possibility of two consecutive conference losses. But Dave Pritchett, Ron's older brother, led the Gulls to a 69-64 come from behind win with 24 points and nine rebounds.

Salisbury faced another tough test as they took on Roanoke on the road without Ron.

The Capital Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, which will hold its tournament Feb. 22-23, is made up of Frostburg, Mary Washington, St. Mary's and Salisbury. The conference hopes to expand in the future, but is hurting now since only Salisbury has a winning record.

The Gulls are hoping for an invitation to the NCAA Division III playoffs. In Division III, four teams from eight regions are selected for tournament play. The eight regional winners then go on to the national championship.

The Gulls are in a good position to make the tourney as long as they don't lose any of their three remaining games.

Invitations will be announced Feb. 24. Since some New Jersey schools are certain to be selected, Salisbury's central location makes it a good candidate to host the regional tournament.

Ron Pritchett, the most highly sought-after high school player in Delaware last year, leads the team in scoring with a 15.9 average and rebounding average of 6.8.

Ron's older brother, Dave, a junior forward is having another good year. Only one of three players on the team to average in double figures for scoring (0.5), Pritchett is tied for the team lead in steals, 18 and is shooting 73% from the foul line.

Co-captain Scott Smith, a senior guard, had an exceptional season last year, with the nation's second best free throw percentage, 90.9 and the twelfth best field goal percentage of 60.2. Smith, who led the team in assists in three previous years, is again team leader with 57 assists. He also has the second highest scoring average on the team (15.4).

Co-captain Ed Jones, a senior center, was the leading rebounder, the third leading scorer and Most Valuable Player of the first ever Capital Conference Tournament last year. This year Jones has second highest rebounding average 6.5 and is first in blocked shots, 6. At 6'4", Jones usually goes up against taller players underneath the boards, but makes up the difference in hustle and knowledge of the game.

Senior point guard, Joe McShea is "the glue that holds this team together," according to Lambert. "The team will only go as far as he plays," Lambert added. While not rolling up the statistics, McShea has seen a lot of action and has been an important role player.

All of this may sound incredible but one can't help wonder why the Salisbury basketball program, which for years seemed terminally mediocre, should suddenly be considered a top Division III school.

Most of us remember the resurgence of the football program in 1983. Now we expect nothing less than excellence in Sea Gull Stadium during the fall. But the emergence of the football powerhouse was easy to explain—Mike McGlinchey. McGlinchey turned the program from fair to fantastic and renewed student interest in the team.

This same scenario is being played at Maggs Gym. But unlike football, the turn around (and I think it's safe to call it that) on the basketball program simply cannot be pinned on one person. Ward Lambert has been head coach since he left Stephen Decatur 15 years ago, and the team has been so balanced in talent the last two seasons that no one player can be singled out for the team's success.

Lambert said the answer is in the team's chemistry. Players, who have been together for years, getting together to make things work. Also, Lambert points to the fact that this year Salisbury had an all Division III level, the better the recruiting the more success. Which in turn leads to even better recruiting. It's a cycle that makes sustaining a winning program easy while turning a losing one around difficult.

For all of us that trickle into Maggs Gym to cheer the Gulls on, we can only hope that cycle is happening here.

SSC May Have Own Public Radio Station

BY THEO MCCORMICK

The Salisbury State College Foundation has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for a construction permit to operate a public radio station here in Salisbury. The SSC Foundation has also applied to the Department of Commerce for a grant to defray the start-up costs of the radio station.

SSC is donating the time of Mark Handley, director of Communications Center; Bruce Blanchard, director of engineering, and Bob Gearhart, director of college advancement, along with other administration officials and secretarial personnel to work on the project.

According to Handley, the Department of Commerce and the FCC work together on allotting grants and licenses to public radio stations. He said the SSC Foundation has several factors going for it, one being that there is no other public radio station serving this area. He also said it is possible that the Foundation may hear of the outcome of the application as early as summer.

The proposed radio station would be a National Public Radio affiliate and would receive 12 channels of programming 24 hours a day. Handley would prefer to have the proposed station to have as much as 25 percent of the program day locally produced.

Handley said a grant application was sent to the Department of Commerce Public Telecommunications Facilities program in January asking for a grant of $237,000. The construction permit application was sent to the FCC in November 1984.

The Department of Commerce "has a bad habit" of not approving grants on first application, Handley said. And he cautioned that may happen here. "If we don't get it, we simply apply again next January. I am very confident that we will get it eventually."

The SSC Foundation has spent $3,000 on engineering consultants and application fees and is prepared to spend additional funds to assist in the development of the station. The SSC Foundation would be the station's owners.

Handley plans to hire a professional managerial staff supplemented by student interns and volunteers. The student interns would be utilized in many positions including on-air talent, music librarian, news reporters and clerical workers.

"I can't see there being less than 20 or 30 interns/volunteers working at the same time," Handley estimated. "The number of interns could be as high as 100 or 200, but that depends on what type of local productions we do, and we want to do as much of that as we can."

The programming schedule will include international, national, business and local news; fine arts programming; classical, progressive, futuristic, jazz, big band and folk music; along with special music, news and entertainment programs.

According to Handley, the type of programming available on a National Public Radio station is unique and usually supplements a market. "Our intention is not to steal the commercial radio stations' audience."

The transmitter/antenna for the station will be located in Seaford, Delaware, and the proposed listening area will reach from north of Dover to Ocean City to the Maryland-Virginia line to the Cambridge-Easton area. "Essentially the entire Delmarva peninsula will be covered."

Handley said. And he cautioned that may ered," Handley said.

Approximately $79,000 of additional funds need to be raised to complete the proposed plans. Handley said support must come from the community to make the station viable. He hopes local businesses and community groups will support the station financially in order to ensure its survival. At present, support from the community has been "tremendous," according to Handley.

The SSC administration has been 100 percent supportive in the station's planning, Handley said. It has guaranteed space for the station, although at present no definite location has been found. Space may open up with the construction of the new College Center and Tawes' renovation. There is no plan to occupy previously designated space, Handley emphasized. There is even a possibility the station may be located off campus. WSSC, the student run radio station, and the proposed public station "can only benefit and complement each other," said Handley.

Tony Broadbent, WSSC station manager, said, "I have mixed feelings about the plan." His main concern is the lack of student involvement in the development stages.

"I would like to see more student input," Broadbent is also concerned with the attention being paid to the proposed station. He feels some duties are being neglected within the Communication Arts department because of time and energy spent on the project. But Broadbent said it would be good for the school and WSSC would probably benefit.

In time, SSC may have its own broadcast station-FM 89.5.

Students Form New Film Society

BY TERRI TRESP

In an attempt to provide "alternative viewing" for students who are bored with the fare of popular movies in the area or who simply wish to broaden their horizons, two SSC students have created a new film club, The Campus Motion Picture Society.

Cris Budel, a sophomore who transferred to SSC from the University of Minnesota last semester, and David Moore, a graduate student who received his undergraduate degree from State University of New York, began kicking around the idea of forming the club last November.

"We were really saddened by the limited scope of pictures available for student viewing here," Budel said, since both had attended larger schools that provided a wider range of entertainment.

So far, faculty attempts to show less popular, yet important movies through the International Film Series have been basically unsuccessful with students, Budel said. Moore added that local theaters don't show less popular movies either because it's not economically feasible for them.

Budel and Moore hope to start screenings this semester if their funding comes through. Their projected schedule includes Short Film Expo, a series of experimental features, shorts and cartoons; Citizen Kane, the Orson Welles classic, The Great Dictator, a Charlie Chaplin film; Playtime, a piece directed by French comedian Jacques Tati, and Dr. Strangelove, Stanley Kubrick's comment on nuclear war starring Peter Sellers.

All features will be shown Thursdays at 7 p.m. either in Devilbiss 149 or Caruthers Auditorium. In this new "video age" as Moore called it, the club is their attempt "to preserve the classics."

Simply showing movies, however, isn't Budel's and Moore's only goal. They don't hide the fact they would like to create a "social awareness" among students regarding "slightly left of center politics." Lectures relevant to each film's subject matter will be offered after each screening, and pamphlets on film topics such as technique or theme or on political aspects of the films will be distributed before each viewing.

Moore said he hopes the society grows into "a more sophisticated atmosphere" enabling them to sponsor series on specific artists, genres and film history.

If interest in the society is strong enough, Budel and Moore have already conceived of an offshoot group, The Crackerjack Film Club, which would schedule additional viewings and programs. Suggestions for films are welcome from anyone.

Budel said they don't plan to charge admission, but added donations for refreshments served during the break between film and lecture would be appreciated.

Budel stressed this is strictly a student initiated project, though they received much help and encouragement from "advisor" Jim Welsh of the English Dept. "It's actually relatively easy to get an original organization started," he said.

This Is College!

BY HUGH MORRIS

Life On Terror-Firma, or, Hey, Where'd Everybody Go?

Back again with the old nose to the grindstone bit, it occurs to me that the cold wind that whips across the frozen steppes of Delmarva is a natural metaphor for the climate of the student body here at SSC. The wind is so strong that it seems to have blown the door closed on anything but a "practical" education. This is college! This is the last big shot in the pan for many of us before we enter the mundane rut that is daily life to the automats of America. After this, it's all uphill in a world that doesn't say "thanks!" And as a veteran member of the expanded liver club, I say to you that there is more to off hours activities than the bottle.

True, the "12 oz. curl" has its place on and off campus; yet, there is more to this experience-of-a-lifetime than cracking books and tossing back brews. This campus and all its busy little workers exist for one thing—to serve you.

And you have a couple of pals who like it too, but you wanna know how to dress and cook the lil' buggers once you get them home, right? So, you go to see Dave Gano in the Collee Center and say, "We want to start a crap-shooting club." He'll ask you what you want to do with your club, who you want to reach and where you want to go. You'll fill him in on all the particulars and intricacies of your organization and he'll ask you to fill out a card on the name of your club, say SSCSC: The Salisbury State Crap Shooting Club.

You'll also have to list the Instructor (not as tough as it sounds, you can con, rather talk a lot of pro's into advising clubs), and the names of your officers: Bud Wiser, president; Hy Perbole, v.p.; Hugh G. Elation, sec.; and Mary MacMonitor, treas.; ad nauseum.

Then, your collective heart will stop as he tells you that your club is accepted and recognized by the college! You have taken the first step to clubdom, with all the benefits and responsibilities that entails.

Blood From A Turnip, or, Rapport With Fellow Inmates

Now you make your move (with delayed cost analysis plans, charts and graphs and other ilk used in begging for money—torn clothes might help) to the Student Appropriations Board office which is cleverly concealed in a lost corridor of Tawes Hall.

Remember, these are your fellow students doling out the cash, so you do have some common ground to stand on. You'll want to tell them your projected expenses: crap tables (to dress the lil' guys on for "cooking"), primers by Nathan Detroit and Damon Runyon on how to shoot craps, etc.

They'll rule (with an iron hand) and you're in, pal! (Or you're not). It's that easy. Join or start your club today. Let's get this campus HOPPING on weekends.

Photojournalist to Lecture in Caruthers

Freelance photojournalist Lynne Barbee will present a lecture entitled "Victim and Victors, People Struggling in the Third World: Experiences of a Photojournalist" Thursday, March 7 at 8 p.m. in the Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Her talk will address what she has learned from traveling around the world taking pictures in places the average American will never see.

Barbee will discuss how to shoot pictures when everybody else is snooting guns, a subject particularly appropriate for Barbee, who, since December of 1983, has focused her attention on Central America, including a three week study tour to Nicaragua and Salvadoran refugee camps in Honduras.

Barbee's recent field work also includes a tour of Maniban refugee camps in Angola, a six month study of refugee conditions in Horn of Africa (Sudan, Somalia, Ethiopia), and a lengthy tour of Yemen, Palestine/Israel and Lebanon.

Her talk is sponsored by the Department of Political Science and the College Center in association with the Faculty Cultural Events

Committee. An exhibition of Barbee's photographs is currently on display through March 15 in the College Center Nanticoke Room. The program is free and open to the public.

Answers To Questions About Writing Exam

BY TED PALIK

What is the "Junior Proficiency Examination in Written Communication?" Why do I have to take it? Why does anyone have to take it? These questions and others have been asked by students who qualify ever since they glanced at that pink sheet everyone got with their schedules earlier this semester.

Writing Center personnel offered some help in answering questions about the examination and so did Geography Department Chairman Robert Rosing, who helped formulate the program that contains the exam.

"The Junior Proficiency Examination in Written Communication is just one aspect of a larger program called 'Writing Across the Curriculum,'" explained Director of Developmental Studies Wavie Gibson. "Writing Across the Curriculum is a campus-wide effort designed by the SSC aculty to see that all students are engaged in some kind of writing experience so as to improve basic writing skills," he said.

Gibson said he believed Writing Across the Curriculum is part of a national trend among colleges and universities to upgrade student writing skills.

Gibson stressed that the Developmental Studies Department and the Writing Center are not responsible for basic policy but serve as a support service to offer information to students and teachers. He explained that the Writing Center was to implement the examination designed by the Office of the Academic Dean. "That office developed the basic policy and told us at the Writing Center to support and implement that policy to the best of our ability and to answer any questions students might have about either the examination or the Writing Across the Curriculum program," Gibson said.

Geography Department Chairman Robert Rosing said that the concern over students' writing quality at SSC grew from the fact that several faculty saw writing skills deteriorating.

In response, the Academic Council formed the Ad Hoc Committee for Writing Proficiency and charged it with reviewing the seldom used and apparently ineffective Writing Proficiency Requirement, located in the current catalogue.

The committee then recommended ways to help upgrade student writing skills and locate the weakest 10 percent of SSC students. "The faculty had been noticing bad papers and essays or quite some time but they weren't sending anyone to the Writing Center for help," Rosing said. "So, the committee recommended Writing Across the Curriculum as a way to aid students in improving their writing skills."

Rosing outlined the program which includes grades of "C" or better in both English 101 and 102, increased writing loads in appropriate course curriculums and a junior level exam, which is the Junior Proficiency Examination in Written Communication schedule for March 2.

"We needed a campus-wide standard writing policy," Rosing said. "We could no longer just leave it up to the individual teachers."

Both Gibson and Rosing stressed that the examination is not designed nor was it created to punish students. "The exam is just one instrument of evaluating student writing skills," Gibson said. "It is a tool, an information provider." Gibson added that the Writing Center is open daily and will answer any questions students might have.

Gibson also said he believed the Ad Hoc Committee was well informed about what constitutes good writing skills when they recommended Writing Across the Curriculum. "The committee acquired its information through research, professors at SSC and from other colleges and experts. "I think they had a good idea of what is considered clear and competent writing," he said. Director of the Writing Center Terry Goldsmith said she was "glad that the Writing Center is involved" and said she is ready to assist students in "writing to learn."

Rosing added that the exam should serve as a tool to help students who have trouble writing clearly. "They'll have plenty of time to do it," he said.

Rosing went on to describe the format of the exam. "There will be an excerpt or a single passage. The student will have to summarize what he thinks the passage is trying to say. Or there might be two related passages and the student will have to synthesize the two."

"We are looking for basic writing skills in summarizing, sentence structure, spelling and mechanics. Just a minimum level of writing," he said.

The SSC Writing Center apparently is helpful for these two students.

King Says Modular Housing Will Be Ready By Fall

BY DALE SHUFELT

Salisbury State College's new modular housing program will be tentatively ready for the fall semester, according to Harry King, director of resident life.

The new complex, located on the corner of Camden Avenue and Dogwood Drive, will consist of 14 modular homes with each unit housing 10 students. A separate building will be a service building, which will include laundry and mail facilities and an activity room.

Each room will be fully furnished and wired for cable and phone service. Since the complex has no cooking facilities, the residents have the option to enroll in the 15-meal or 19-meal plan. Eight of the modular homes will house women and six will house men. Three RA's and an area director will live in the complex and provide assistance to residents.

One misconception about the project is a vehicle to increase full time enrollment. Since the building of the new dormitory is two to three years away, officials at the college had to provide an immediate means to alleviate the housing shortage.

While the lottery will not be eliminated, the new complex will greatly reduce the impact of the lottery. Once the new dormitory is built, the college will sell the modular homes, recouping at least half of the project's $920,000 price tag.

While most policies will be the same, there will be some changes in the rules for the new complex. A quiet-living theme is proposed for the project, one which is attractive to academic achievement. According to King, officials are "in the process of letting students know and get their reactions." Upperclassmen offered housing for next fall will be able to sign up to live in this complex during room selection week in May. Those with class seniority may be given first opportunity or those with grade point averages of 3.0 or above may get priority. Officials are open for suggestions in this area.

There are two open meetings scheduled concerning the complex. One is Feb. 21 from 3:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m. and the other is on Feb. 25 from 10-11 a.m. Students, faculty and members of the community are urged to attend the meeting which will be held in the Nanticoke Room in the College Center.

A contest will be set up to name the new complex. The contest is open to all and entry forms are available at the Housing Office or from a Resident Assistant.

Let's Dance!

WSSC Dance Marathon Scheduled March 1-2

BY MARY ELLEN LARSON

Put on those funky new dancing shoes you just bought for nights out at the Flying Club and wear them where you can help a worthy cause. WSSC, the campus radio station, and Coastal Hospice, Inc., a community-based, non-profit organization designed to give home care to terminally ill patients and their families, are sponsoring a Dance Marathon March 1 and 2 in Tawes Gym. The 28 hour dance will benefit Coastal Hospice.

This will be one big party, a combination Dance Marathon/Band Showcase, according to the event's creator and coordinator, WSSC station manager Tony Broadbent.

"I'd love to have at least 10 bands," Broadbent said. "There will actually be at least five or six." Two bands already scheduled are the Chest Pains and Krankenstein. WSSC disc jockeys will supply the tunes between bands. Registration packets can be picked up at WSSC in Tawes. Prizes will be awarded to dancers who bring in the most money. Every diehard who completes the marathon will receive a trophy. The individual who finishes the dance and collects the most money will win the trophy donated in honor of Harry Levinthal's parents, on display now at WSSC.

This will be a chance for dorms and campus organizations to compete against each other to raise the most donations. A victory dance (free DJ for a private dance) which will be scheduled at a time mutually convenient to the group and to WSSC, will go to the winning organization.

It is not necessary to have a partner, just good shoes. The marathon will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, March 1 and continue to midnight on Saturday, with 10 minute breaks every hour and an hour break from 3-4 a.m. Food will be provided.

For non-marathoners, the door is still open. Admission is $2 at the door from 8 p.m. to midnight each night and $1 at other times. Everyone is eligible for door prizes.

This is the first year that WSSC has sponsored the event. Broadbent admits one of his objectives is to make the radio station better known throughout the community.

A lot of hours and energy from the WSSC staff have helped make the marathon possible—time and effort from people in an organization here at SSC that is growing in quality as fast as the school itself.

"The biggest satisfaction has been seeing the people at the station come together," Broadbent said. For information on registering for the dance marathon, or if you would like to help out with band set-up or other areas, call WSSC at 543-6195.

Gospel Choir Performs During Black Awareness Month

BY DORNELL WOOLFORD

The Black Student Union hosted the Delaware State Gospel Choir in honor of Black Awareness Month Tuesday Feb. 12.

The electrifying performance of the choir was, to say the least, an exhilarating experience for members of the audience and also for members of the choir. Highlights of the performance included such memorable hymns as: "I'm Saved," "I Shall Wear a Crown," and "Battle Hymn of the Re-

The student-formed choir began 15 years ago with only nine members. Since then, enrollment has reached a high of 112 in 1980. During those 15 years, the gospel choir has had the pleasure of spreading the "Gospel through song" in most Atlantic states.

The program concluded with brief remarks by BSU President Robert Bruce. A reception was held in the Holloway Hall Social Room after the performance.

Lady-Gulls Retain Spirit Despite Problems

BY RICK GILMAN

This year's women's basketball team, with a current record of 12-10, is one of the youngest in the college's history with three juniors, three sophomores and eight freshman.

Head Coach Deirdre Kane, who is coming off her rookie coaching season last year with a less than impressive record of 11-15, has faced a tough schedule so far with four tournaments and six teams that play in higher divisions.

"We've been getting the girls in shape, working them hard," said Kane. "We've been working hard on the fundamentals. A lot of the girls are ready to play and that's what we've built up to."

All that hard work paid off early as the Gulls jumped to a 7-3 record in 1984. The Gulls finished last year's portion of the season with a thriller 76-73 overtime victory over Trenton State in the Gull Classic.

Sophomore Kim Fielder, who was named MVP for her 42 point effort in two games, was also named to the ECAC Honor Roll that week.

The Gulls started the new year by splitting a couple of games in New Jersey.

Junior Sara Marvel scored 20 points with 12 rebounds in a 79-75 win over Glassboro State. The Gulls then had a six game winning streak snapped when they lost to Stockton State 78-63. Fielder had 16 points with 12 boards in the losing effort.

Salisbury got back on the winning track with wins over Virginia Wesleyan, 68-64, and St. Mary's, 81-41, raising their record to 10-4. The win over St. Mary's was the 25th consecutive time the Gulls have beaten St. Mary's without a loss in the series.

It was also a landmark game because junior Diana DeJesus totaled nine assists, giving her 101 for the season, which breaks the school record of 100 set last year by Tracy Mayland. DeJesus now has 150 assists with at least three games yet to be played.

The team started to slide when they lost three in a row to Frostburg State, Mary Washington and Shepherd, whom they beat earlier in the season. With the losses went the team's hope for an NCAA tournament bid.

Despite the three game slide, Sara Marvel averaged 25 points and 12.5 rebounds in the Frostburg and Mary Washington games, scoring a career-high 30 points against Frostburg. Her efforts got her named ECAC Player of the Week.

Game losses weren't the Gulls' only problems. Salisbury beat Notre Dame 65-54, but starter Jacques Cowan was sidelined with a broken foot. This meant Sara Marvel was the only remaining starter from the beginning of the season. Two players became ineligible due to academic standing, while Fielder, at the time the team's leading scorer, was benched for back and knee problems.

Consequently, the Gulls went down to Christopher Newport 58-52, nationally ranked Frostburg 77-52 and Kean College 73-67. Salisbury won the first game of the Catholic Invitational Tournament to raise their record at present to 12-10.

Throughout the season, team captain Marvel has been the backbone of the team. She currently leads the team shooting percentage, 48.6; free throw percentage, 77.2; rebounding, 9; and scoring, 17.4. Marvel, who led the team last year in scoring and rebounding, lost 40 pounds between seasons.

Fielder, who had the most successful freshman year in SSC history, was second in scoring and rebounding last year and holds those positions now.

DeJesus, who played under Coach Kane at Camden Catholic High School, not only leads the team in assists, but also in steals, 50, and blocked shots, 11.

This team had high hopes midway through the season, but poor fortune dragged the team down. Still, Coach Kane and her players should be commended for the way they handled the adversity. With not a single senior on the team, their future looks bright.

SIDE NOTE: Coach Kane, a native of New Jersey and former high school coach at Camden Catholic, was given several awards by the Basketball Club of South Jersey for her coaching and playing ability. Kane was the first woman at the University of Dayton to be awarded an athletic scholarship.

SSC Wrestlers End Season

BY RICK GILMAN

Wrestling Head Coach Ron Otto had to deal with a young and inexperienced squad this season. Still, some wrestlers have been exceptional despite their teammates' setbacks.

Salisbury started 1985 by taking last place in the Division III dominated University of Delaware Tournament. SSC was represented in the scoring by junior L.J. Thomas who took fourth at 177 pounds in the consolation finals.

The Gulls took sixth place in the Delaware State Tournament. Senior heavyweight Jim O'Halloran beat Leo Feist of Pittsburgh-Johnstown 11-3 to take the heavyweight title.

Salisbury also competed in the Liberty Baptist Invitational Tournament in January. The Sea Gulls finished a strong fifth place. O'Halloran lost in the finals, but his season record stands at 18-3. Dan Masucci took fourth place for the Gulls at 150 pounds.

The Gulls then traveled to Delaware State for a quad-meet against the Hornets, Temple and Trenton State. O'Halloran won in two of his three matches, while Thomas and Bob Kays picked up wins for the Gulls. Another winner was Chuck Mutschler in the 126 pound class, who had been injured much of the season.

February began with the Gulls on the road again, this time at rampden-Sydney. Salisbury beat the host team 27-22 for its first dual match victory of the year. The Gulls then dropped matches to Longwood College, 30-23, and Virginia Tech., 43-11, while tying Newport News Apprentice 28-28.

O'Halloran again led the team with four victories, including a pin and a technical fall. Pat Mullins pinned three opponents at 158 pounds before being pinned by an opponent from Division I Virginia Tech. Thomas won two matches at 177 pounds as did teammates Bob Rolfe and Mutschler.

In their final dual match of the season, SSC dropped a 34-6 decision to York College at home. O'Halloran continued his success with a 6-4 decision, while Thomas picked up an 8-1 decision for Salisbury's only other win.

The Sea Gulls now head for the NCAA East Regionals on Feb. 15 and 16. Those who win will continue on to the NCAA Championships.

Lacrosse Team Prepares For Season

BY TODD GALLEN

With only a handful of veterans returning from last year's 14-2 squad, the Sea Gull lacrosse team faces a tough 15 game schedule this spring.

"We're a young and aggressive team," said third year head coach Hank Janczyk. "We've got to be very persistent during the season. We've got to mold and form a winning attitude with this young team if we want to do as well if not better than last year," noted Janczyk, who has compiled a 23-7 record at SSC and who last year took the Gulls to the NCAA Division III semi-final round.

Three attackmen return from last year. Senior tri-captain Roger Koch is the biggest attackman on the team at 6'4", 190 pounds. Last year Koch scored 23 goals and 23 assists to rank fourth on the team.

Junior Jim Townsend, who was named the squad's most improved player in 1984, also returns. Sophomore Jim Sturgell, who scored 14 goals and four assists last year, will also be attacking for the Gulls.

Adding to the attack are three newcomers, Rocco Beccarris, Don Gallagher and Jeff Pruitt. Beccarris and Gallagher transferred to SSC from Nassau Community College in New York where Gallagher led his team in scoring last year. Jeff Pruitt transferred to the Sea Gulls from Essex Community College where he was one of the leading scorers in junior college history with 118 points.

Senior tri-captain Kyle Hannon returns at mid-field along with junior Glenn Rutkowski and sophomore Jeff Cross. The trio combined for 25 goals and 11 assists with limited playing time last year.

Also expected to see action for the Gulls are sophomores Ron Sansone and Robert Reid along with freshmen James Nelson and Rick Maranto.

Defensively the Gulls will be rebuilding after giving up only 128 goals last year. Look for senior tri-captain Mike Oliver and sophomores Steve Berguist and Bill Larkin to be keys in rebuilding the defense. Janczyk will be looking at other players to fill the shoes of last year's defensive unit, too.

At goalkeeper the Gulls were thought to be in great shape until All-American sophomore Kevin McFarlin transferred to North Carolina to pursue his studies. The Gull stickers are now looking to junior Dean Lewis to defend the cage. Lewis played only in junior varsity games his past two years at SSC.

Janczyk is hoping Beccarris or Hannon will be able to play backup for Lewis as he handles the goal-keeper spot.

Richard Abel and Rob Clarke are both in their first year as assistant coaches. Both were outstanding on last year's squad, Abel as a defenseman and Clarke as an attackman and midfielder.

The Sea Gull's schedule has nine games set for Sea Gull Stadium. Pre-season exhibition has already gotten underway and the Gulls will host Hampshire Lacrosse Club March 2 at 1 p.m.

The regular season begins Saturday March 9 at 1 p.m. with the stickers hosting Farleigh Dickinson.

Assisting Janczyk in the 1985 season will be three former Gull lacrosse standouts. Drew Haugh is in his second year as an assistant coach. He was an outstanding midfielder for SSC, finishing his brilliant college lacrosse career in 1983.

Heavyweight Jim O'Halloran has advanced to the NCAA Division III Wrestling championships.

Intramural Notebook

The Intramural Recreation Department is back in action for the spring starting off with 5 on 5 basketball. Five divisions comprise this year's basketball line-up, with 36 teams battling it out in the three league format.

Five teams are participating in the Women's Division, with Alvin Bailey's SNACK ATTACK heading the list of female ball players. Other teams include Coach Steve Groff's CLUELESS, Deidre Kane's PUNKY BREWSTERS, Jacky Warfield's LADY JUMPSHOTS and Joanne Vorndran's SIY-7.

A heated battle is set in the Men's Highly Skilled Division. Cliff Moss' NASTY MUSKETEERS should have pretty tough competition with the likes of Tony Wilson's SPOILERS, Lionel Makell's NEW ADDITION and Mike Pantazelos' WHAP-ETY.

Other teams in the league include Nick Alessandrini's WOLVERINES, Eric Simmons and Donald Ricketts' CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM, Chandler's SHOOTERS and Eddie Ribas and Chris Johnson's NO SLAMA JAMA.

Three groups break down the Men's Skilled Division with 24 teams involved. Skilled A teams are Ross Welch's 'OFF', 4's COMPANY with Gary Felty and Bob Todd's KAOS.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON under Bill Rolleston will be taking on the likes of Jeff Armstrong's JR. CA-DETS, Tim Furr's OUTLAWS and Walston's AIR FORCE II.

ELMER FUDD'S REBELS head the Skilled B division with Steve Groff doubling as player-coach. Jerry Thomas' JERRY'S KIDS will be facing Rich Fenton's LIGHT STREETERS and Al Holliday's FREE WHEELERS will test out Pete Ott's SQUAD 29.

Other B teams include Doug Norris' NORTH STARS, Duncan MacLean's GENERALS and Jim Dixon's KRISPY KREME II.

Eight teams will be elbowing for the C league with Bill Hunsberger's DEADWEIGHT looking pretty strong early on, though Greg Murphy's F.W.D.C.S. team will be giving them stiff competition. Lanny Fisher's 69ers and Craig Brandenburg's AT THE BUZZER look to stay in the race, as does Kevin Stoetzel's WHITE BOYS. Len Harrington and Mike Robinson hope to take the MEDIX past Howard Pusey's SILVER BULLET MIXXERS, but don't be surprised to see Paul Zimmerman's STAFF GERM try to slip by for a few upsets.

5 on 5 basketball will be held throughout the month until spring break, with an eight game format being used. After regular season there will be a double-elimination tournament to decide each league's winners.

OUTDOOR CLUB BACKPACKING: The Outdoor Club will be backpacking in Big Scloss, Northern Virginia March 1-3. Three weeks later the group will head south for Spring Break March 22-31 to central Florida for backpacking and canoeing near Ocala. On April 19-21 the club will be rockclimbing and backpacking in Seneca Rocks, West Virginia. The school year will be capped with a canoe trip on the Potomac River May 10-12. For more information, attend the weekly meetings Wednesdays at 6:30 p.m. in Tawes Hall, room 118.

WOMEN'S SOCCOR CLUB: All women interested in playing with the SSC Women's Soccer Club are invited to a meeting Wednesday, Feb. 20 in Maggs, room 204.
